

THE 2023 TACP EXPLAINED

The Tennis Anti-Corruption Program (TACP) protects the integrity of the sport and protects you against corruption and betting-related offences. To read the full TACP rules, visit www.itia.tennis

All Officials working at professional tennis events are covered by the TACP and will remain covered for a period of two years following the last event they officiated at.

It is your responsibility to be aware of and comply with the rules:

BETTING

You cannot bet on any tennis event or assist others to do so.

Tennis betting companies must not sponsor, employ or provide any other benefits to you or any member of your team.

MATCH FIXING

Do not ask or help any player to fix the outcome or any aspect of a tennis event (this includes spot fixing of points, games or sets or attempting to manipulate the draw in any way).

DO NOT ask for or accept money or any benefit to manipulate, delay, or otherwise alter scoring or scoring data.

INSIDE INFORMATION

Do not share non-public, sensitive information about a tennis event or a player for betting purposes with anyone.

If you break the rules you could face a lifetime ban from tennis and a maximum fine of $250,000.

To help protect our sport you must:

REPORT

any knowledge or suspicions of corruption to the ITIA.

INFORM

the ITIA as soon as possible if you receive a potentially corrupt approach.

COOPERATE

fully with ITIA investigations if asked to do so.

For further information, to report corrupt activity or if you have any questions download the ITIA app or contact us using the links below:
